

Greetings. There's something important I need to discuss with you unexpectedly.

5/5/2024 15:23:54 - It has come to pass that on this date, I orchestrated a breach into your device's operating system, granting myself total access to your account. My observation of your online endeavors has been ongoing and unwavering.

Your system's security has been overridden by a virus, placing your devices, including the display and camera, under my control. All your online and offline data is now accessible to me.

Every piece of your data has been collected by me.

Through my surveillance of you, I stumbled upon some fascinating details.

You likely understand the significance of my recent discovery and the expected response.

If you'd rather I didn't carry this out, send 950 $ (US Dollar) to my Bitcoin wallet.

My bitcoin wallet address:

bc1qxnkd5cqtqpk7tk9nuhjl586sqzenxn4l4z75f8

If the process of funding a Bitcoin wallet is unfamiliar to you, Google can provide instructional guides.

Once the funds have been received, I will immediately remove all unwanted material. Afterward, we can part ways. I assure you that I am committed to deactivating and removing all malware from your devices. You can trust me; I always honor my commitments. This is a fair deal, especially considering the time and effort I've invested in tracking your profile and traffic.

Please note that you have exactly two days (48 hours) from the moment you open this letter to make the payment!

Following this timeframe, if I do not receive the agreed-upon amount from you, I will release access to your accounts and visited websites, personal information, and edited materials to the public without prior notice.

Remember this: I do not make mistakes, and I strongly discourage any attempts at humor with me. My resources are ample. Complaining about me is fruitless because they won't be able to trace me. Formatting the drive or destroying the device will be ineffective because I already possess your data.

There's no point in replying to me as I don't send messages from personal email, and I won't be able to view any replies

May luck be on your side, and try not to let this bother you! Every person has their own job to do, and today, it just so happened that yours was a bit challenging.

For the future, I recommend that you observe internet safety guidelines and steer clear of dubious websites.

You can enhance your security with McAfee or a similar antivirus.

rycho

You HWID: 611ff530cd90a908c27832f1470615c0

Operating system: Windows 10 Pro [x64]

Antiviruses:

OK

Available keyboard layouts:

Polski (Polska) / Duński (Dania)